

Already our media are narrower, more uniform, less deep and informative than those in England for instance. Our public is less informed and less in step with the issues of the day than our responsibility at home and in the world requires.